

BRINGING HISTORY TO LIFE

The 150th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry “Bucktails” is a group of living historians from Erie and Crawford counties and nearby areas who are dedicated to preserving the historical dignity of the Civil War through reenactments, demonstrations, displays, historical drama and other activities.

The men, women and children of the group strive for strict authenticity as they share the fashion, music, food and other aspects of life during the Civil War.

With roots that predate the Civil War, Edinboro University has been preparing outstanding citizens and leaders since 1857. Edinboro graduates continue to make their mark as historians, filmmakers, animators, educators, business executives and high achievers in many other fields.
